

Joe is a wonderful individual who was very keen to find work. Like every other young individual he would like enough money to buy the latest clothes, phones, music, etc but above all else to gain a sense of achievement, a feeling of worth and social inclusion by contributing to and being part of the community.

Joe thrives on keeping busy and holds a passion for outdoor activities; he has patiently shown his enthusiasm for work over the last three years by undertaking a number of voluntary jobs, which warranted him the Gold Millennium Volunteer Award for accomplishing 200 hours of voluntary work.

Joe loves to work outdoors and holds a particular interest in cutting grass, he has worked very hard to gain the experience and skills he needs to find employment.
